Unlicensed Diabetes Aide: Initial Registration

Registration as an Unlicensed Diabetes Aide (UDA) permits the registrant to accept delegated nursing tasks to assist persons with diabetes. Some tasks a registered nurse may choose to delegate to a UDA include administration of subcutaneous insulin such as helping with an insulin pump, or administering an injection using a vial and syringe or an insulin pen device. The UDA may also assist with other tasks such as performing blood glucose monitoring and counting carbohydrates.

Process for initial registration as a UDA:

- 1. Complete the South Dakota Board of Nursing's (SDBON) approved 5-hour Unlicensed Diabetes Aide (UDA) Training Course.
 - The registered nurse responsible for delegating diabetes tasks to you should contact the SDBON to request the training materials, which includes a booklet and DVD.
- 2. Complete a 5-hour clinical/lab training session and skills checklist with the registered nurse responsible for delegating diabetes tasks to you.
- Complete and submit to the SDBON the Application for Initial UDA Registration. You will be required to take the UDA online exam.
 - You must identify a test proctor to monitor you during the exam. The test proctor guidelines and Proctor Approval Form are located on the SDBON website.
- 4. Within 5-7 business days of receiving your application the SDBON will provide the approved proctor listed on your application the access information to allow you to take the SDBON UDA online exam.
- 5. Upon passing the exam the SDBON will list you as registered on the UDA registry. (If you should fail the exam you may retake the exam one time).
 - Renewal of registration is required every 2 years.
- 6. Once you are listed on the SDBON website as a registered UDA you may then accept delegated diabetes care tasks from an RN, including the subcutaneous administration of insulin.
